

LANDSCAPE IMAGES

Sally Pennington 2020

These landscapes are sourced from images either taken on or sent to my phone. They were painted in a meditative state, again exploring the distances between the reality and the image and the painting.

They have taken on a greater significance as I continue to paint them through the lockdown, when these places are inaccessible to us and they exist as images in a different space.

